

The Aide's Role in Dealing with Combative Dementia Patients

A Webinar • Thursday, February 8, 2018 • 2:00—3:00 p.m. CST

Presented by John Conrad and Libby Hart, RN

Our aides often notice that some elderly patients demonstrate behaviors that include paranoia, delusions, hallucinations and/or aggression. Each patient with aggressive behavior brings a unique challenge as caregivers attempt to assist with ADL/IADL care in the home. This presentation is intended for aides and caregivers to minimize the risk of injury when providing care for patients with dementia who demonstrate some form of combative behaviors. We will provide education and instructions regarding positions and techniques to avoid physical confrontations with those patients who have the tendency to hit, push, kick, spit or grab those providing care. We will address some of the causes of these combative behaviors and provide valuable tips and techniques to ameliorate each occurrence.

Use this session to meet your training requirements. All in-services emphasize the role of home care aides in observation and reporting. It is the responsibility of the home care company to determine if this workshop meets the specific requirements of its aides. The Missouri Department of Health & Senior Services affirms that this session meets the requirements found at 484.36[b] of the Medicare Conditions of Participation and for in-home service companies, this session meets the required standard for on-going training of aides.
